HOME BUILDERS COLLABORATE ON NEW SCHEME TO EMPOWER WOMEN INTO SITE MANAGEMENT

In January the Home Builders Federation (HBF) and Women Into Construction (WiC), launched a scheme to support women to become site managers. The programme was designed in partnership with nine major homebuilders to prepare candidates specifically for the role.

Delivered face-to-face and virtually, the programme's first cohort encouraged more than 80 women across the country to attend an information session, with 18 women accepted to complete the course's work placements, exposing them to invaluable industry knowledge and experience.

The second cohort was announced on 26th April and the team was delighted to see the programme shortlisted for 'Best career development initiative' in the Women in Housing Awards.

"We are thrilled to have played a part in helping to address the gender imbalance in the home building industry and to have empowered these women to consider a role in site management"

RAISING MENTAL HEALTH AWARENESS IN PARLIAMENT

In February HBF and 40 industry representatives gathered at the Houses of Parliament to highlight the work developers are doing to increase mental health awareness amongst their workforces. The Mental Health Awareness Reception was sponsored by Dean Russell, Member of Parliament for Watford, and saw the release of a new report outlining the actions industry has taken so far to tackle the stigma associated with poor mental health.

Free Mental Health Awareness Training for SMEs and the supply chain

HBF has joined up with Lighthouse Club Construction Industry Charity to offer free mental health awareness training to SMEs and those working in the supply chain.

Participants will receive advice and guidance on how to look after their own mental health and what confidential support is available to them, their colleagues and their families.

The facilitators will also discuss what signs to look out for and how to start a conversation with someone who may be struggling.

BUILDING FUTURES: PERSIMMON HOMES AND CORNERSTONE EMPLOYERS INSPIRE CORNWALL'S YOUNG PEOPLE

Regular encounters with employers are essential for preparing young people for the workforce.

A study conducted by The Careers & Enterprise Company showed that more employer encounters and workplace experiences are needed to meet the national volume required by the UK government's careers strategy.

The Cornerstone Employers programme is a group of over 300 businesses that aim to transform the lives of young people in their area. Celebrated by government, Cornerstone Employers work collaboratively and strategically with networks of schools, colleges, and local stakeholders to improve careers education.

Persimmon Homes Cornwall and West Devon joined the programme to inspire young people to consider a future in the construction industry and to provide valuable volunteering opportunities for their employees. As a Cornerstone Employer, the company can better engage with local communities and demonstrate its commitment to young people in the area.

Find out more about the programme at careersandenterprise.co.uk

"I would urge all employers in the construction sector to get involved with their local Careers Hub and see how they can support the young people in their area. You can do this by signing up to 'give an hour' to deliver career activities or host workplace experiences, become an Enterprise Advisor or Cornerstone Employer"

Andy Wallis, Regional Apprentice Manager at Persimmon Homes Cornwall and West Devon
